Construsoft strengthens its role as a digital leader in construction

Zevenaar, 11 March 2025 – The construction industry is at the forefront of a digital revolution, and Construsoft is ready to lead the way. With a fresh and forward-thinking approach and the launch of a new website, Construsoft reinforces its role as a trusted software partner, committed to supporting the industry with smart digital solutions that drive efficiency, collaboration, and sustainability in construction.

With 90% of construction projects facing budget and time overruns, and 40% of global CO₂ emissions coming from the industry, there is an urgent need for smarter solutions. Digital tools can reduce errors, cut material waste, and improve project predictability. Construsoft's BIM and VDC solutions help companies digitalize every step of the building process, ensuring accuracy from the first design to the final construction phase. Helping construction professionals to build smarter, more efficient, and more sustainably.

"Digital transformation is not just about technology; it's about empowering people," says Wouter Hartemink, CEO at Construsoft. "Our customers face complex challenges, and we believe the answer lies in smart collaboration, supported by innovative software. Let's co embodies our belief in smart collaboration, let's cooperate, co-create, and shape the future of construction together."

With a renewed identity and a strong focus on progress, the company is committed to delivering the best tools and knowledge to help customers build smarter, more efficient and more sustainably. Construsoft opens doors to a digital construction world, making it easier for professionals to explore innovative solutions, sharpen their digital building skills, and connect with expert support.
